ACTIVE INVENTORY VALUE	SOLD VOLUME	AVERAGE SOLD PRICE	ABSORPTION RATE

The most revealing metric of the quarter is not the price volume, but the 93% list-to-sale ratio. This confirms that the $1.76 billion market is operating with well-calibrated pricing: sellers are setting realistic prices and buyers are recognizing that value. There is none of the speculative premium that typically inflates the gap between list and sold prices in frothy markets.

A 24.3% absorption rate — meaning roughly 1 out of every 4 newly listed properties closed in the quarter — is a strong, consistent figure. It doesn't suggest a buyer's selection market at the premium segment. This does not signal weakness; it reflects the natural dynamics of a luxury market. The transaction records $800,000 USD and buyers conduct thorough due diligence before committing.

"In a market where it is a year foreign clears within the same quarter, and 93% of those closings happen near the asking price, the data speaks clearly: BCS is not a market for opportunists. It is a market of conviction."

— ALEJANDRO MARQUEZ, CEO OF RONIVAL

When combining pending contracts with closed transactions, 52.3% of new listings already have active buyer activity within the same quarter. This pipeline of $394.6 million in pending contracts signals an equally strong — potentially stronger — Q2 in closed volume.

THE $1.76 BILLION MOMENTUM

The first quarter of 2026 firmly establishes Baja California Sur as a real estate market of significant scale, reviewing maturity and clear signs of structural resilience. With 1,492 active listings valued at $1.76 billion USD and 362 closed transactions totaling $293.8M, the state demonstrates that demand from domestic and international buyers remains robust.

ANATOMY OF A PATIENT, SELECTIVE MARKET

207 average days on market is not a sign of a slow market — it is the signature of an informed buyer making major financial decisions deliberately. Understanding this internal dynamics of this market is key to positioning correctly on both sides of a transaction.

A MARKET OF BUYERS, NOT SELLERS	WHAT THE DATA TELLS US	WHAT IT MEANS FOR SELLERS	WHAT IT MEANS FOR BUYERS
The data has only one interpretation: buyers are in control. Sellers who price correctly from the start will close. Those who overprice will wait. The 93% list-to-sale ratio leaves no room for ambiguity.	207 days on average. Buyers are not rushed. They are comparing, negotiating, and waiting for the right property at the right price.	Your first price is your most important decision. Every week above market value reduces your leverage.	Patience is your advantage. Use it. Negotiate hard. Walk away if needed. The market will wait with you.

"In a market where it is a year foreign clears within the same quarter, and 93% of those closings happen near the asking price, the data speaks clearly: BCS is not a market for opportunists. It is a market of conviction."

The most interesting paradox is now Inventory is the disconnect between unit count and value. La Paz leads in unit volume with 20.7% of total sales, but represents only 14.0% of total inventory value. Conversely, San José del Cabo contributes just 82 units (5.5% of the total) but accounts for 20.0% of total inventory value at $232.9M. This value concentration is the hallmark of a mature ultra-premium submarket.

SIX MARKETS, SIX STORIES

Baja California Sur is not a monolithic market. It is a mosaic of real estate micro-economies, each with its own buyer profile, price dynamics, and value outlook. Understanding these differences is the key to investing with precision.

ACTIVE LISTINGS	AVG. PRICE	AVG. DAYS ON MARKET	SOLD VOLUME	LIST-TO-SALE RATIO
722	$1,810M	243	$215M	72.3%

Los Cabos concentrates 72.3% of the state's closed volume, driven by international buyers seeking vacation homes and rental income. Its cost of entry, with an average sale price of $1.81M USD, positions it as the most accessible luxury market in the state, though still well above national averages.

Cabo San Lucas and San José del Cabo function as the active commercial and tourism hubs, while the Corridor — stretching between them — appeals to buyers who want to be connected but not in the middle of the action. The average 243 days on market reflects low seasonality and a buyer pool that takes its time before pulling the trigger.

La Paz is the state's most dynamic primary market. With total listings between 20.7% of new supply, 58 is the lowest average days on market in the state, reflecting strong local demand and realistic pricing. Its average sale price of $485K USD makes it the most accessible entry point for buyers of homes, positioning itself as a genuine alternative to Los Cabos for those who prioritize culture and authenticity over glamour.

242	$1,540K	65	$421K	92%

The most surprising finding of Q1 2026. The Pacific Coast has emerged with the highest average sale price in the state — $1.54M USD, or 27% above the BCS average — and the fastest absorption rate of any region. Its 65 average days on market reflect a buyer pool that knows exactly what it wants and is willing to pay for it. With 242 active listings, BCS's supply is thinning in key zones. Early pricing in this area is the smartest move.

THE OPTIMAL SELECTION WINDOW

For the 2026 buyer, the BCS market offers something rarely seen in established luxury destinations: an inventory cycle and a price cushion. The combination creates an opportunity window that demands a clear strategy.

With 1,492 new properties on the market and a 93% list-to-sale ratio, the buyer enjoys two simultaneous advantages: wide selection and stable pricing. This is not a "bargain" market, but it is not an overpriced one either. The current dynamic allows buyers to:

EXPAND THEIR SHORTLIST	NEGOTIATE WITH DATA	CONSIDER THEIR TIMING
With 207 average days on market, buyers have time to visit, compare, and return. There is no pressure to make a decision in the first week. Take the time to find the property that truly fits.	Use the 93% list-to-sale ratio as your baseline. Sellers who price above market are already losing leverage. Your offer should reflect what the data says, not what the listing says.	Q1 closed volume was $293.8M. Pending contracts add another $394.6M. Buyers who act in Q2 will be competing in a market that is already moving. Timing matters.

"In Q1 2026, the BCS buyer has a property, not days to decide, and data that confirms the price they pay is the real market price. Ready for selective abundance and pricing stability. Right on cue?"

— ALEJANDRO MARQUEZ, CEO

THE POWER OF PRICING PRECISION

In a market with 1,492 new listings and 207 average days on market, differentiation is no longer optional. Sellers who understand the market data and use it to strategically position their property hold a decisive advantage over those who operate on instinct.

The 93% list-to-sale efficiency carries a powerful message for sellers: well-priced properties sell. There is no need for fire-sale discounting, but there is also no room for overpricing. The data is clear: properties that are priced correctly from the start sell at the original list price — meaning the initial pricing decision is now, more than ever, the most critical.

THE 93% LIST-TO-SALE RATIO	THE 207-DAY AVERAGE	THE 1,492 ACTIVE LISTINGS
Sellers who price correctly from the start receive, on average, 93% of their asking price. Overpricing by even 5% can push a property into the 207-day average — or beyond. The market rewards precision, not optimism.	Properties that sell within the first 30 days typically close near full price. Those that linger past 90 days begin to accumulate price reductions. Every week above market value reduces your leverage.	With 1,492 properties competing for attention, buyers have more options than ever. Standing out requires more than a beautiful photo — it requires the right price, from the right day.

WHAT THE DATA ALREADY ANTICIPATES

A pending transaction pipeline of $394.6 million — exceeding Q1 closed volume — signals that the second quarter is building toward being a stronger period in executed closings. Here are the key signals to monitor:

ACTIVE SALE STATE	PENDING	CLOSED
• The collection of inventory remains highly available • Buyers are actively comparing properties and negotiating terms • Sellers are receiving offers but have not yet committed • Properties can be withdrawn if terms are not met	• Buyer and seller have agreed on price and terms • Due diligence is underway • Financing is being finalized • Deposits are in escrow	• Transaction is complete • Ownership has been transferred • Funds have been disbursed • Property is no longer available
